A Modern-Day Parable

The story of Job probably happened around 2000–1800 B.C. The details of the story reflect the culture of that period in history. What might be different in the story if it happened today? Use the graphic organizer below to organize your writing. Begin by filling in the information that you have studied about Job. Next, fill in the second graphic organizer with details that fit the culture of today. Then write your modern-day story of Job.

A graphic organizer for the story of Job. It consists of two ovals at the top labeled "Main characters" and "Setting". Lines from these ovals lead to a large rectangular box labeled "Problem of the story". Below this box are five more rectangular boxes, each labeled "A story event", "A story event", "How the problem is solved", and "The ending".

A second graphic organizer for a modern-day parable. It consists of two ovals at the top labeled "Main characters" and "Setting". Lines from these ovals lead to a large rectangular box labeled "Problem of the story". Below this box are five more rectangular boxes, each labeled "A story event", "A story event", "How the problem is solved", and "The ending".
